EWTN radio, 970AM,
Sacred Heart Radio from Spokane

School Uniforms: Larson's Department Store and Bazaar Shoe Store will carry uniform clothes for our SPP School students.

FYI: In the past 12 years, $21,000 has been gleaned through the efforts of Teresa Seloske, our school librarian, and her work with gathering, boxing, finding the best price, and shipping off printer cartridges for sale. The cartridge funds are the only source of income to pay for and update SPP School library books of which the number is approximately 8,000 at this time. The library had 300 books when she began. The community and all patrons of our school have our gratitude for their donations of cartridges to the school. God bless!

Sts. Peter & Paul's Choirs

This is a heartfelt invitation to any and all who would praise God "twice" by singing in our choirs. As with the heavenly Choirs of Angels, many voices are needed to sing God's praises in our Lord's liturgies. Please come sing.

May neighbors respect you,
troubles neglect you,
Angels protect you
And heaven accept you.

The Imitation of Christ

By: Thomas A Kempis

On Knowing Yourself

WE CANNOT count on ourselves much, for often through lack of grace and understanding our judgment is a limited one and we soon lose what we have through our own neglect. Often we are unaware of our interior blindness. Many times we do evil and, what is far worse, we justify it.

Sometimes our passions rule us and we mistake it for zeal. We are critical of the small defects in our neighbors, but overlook the serious faults in ourselves. We are quick to complain of what we put up with from others, with never a thought of what others suffer from us. If we would see ourselves as we really are, we would not find cause to judge others severely.

Those who are turned to God consider the care of themselves before all other cares; and looking seriously to themselves, they find it easy to be silent about the deeds of others. You will never be an interior person and a follower of Christ unless you learn not to meddle in the affairs of others and to look to your own.

If you are concerned wholly with God and yourself, you will be unconcerned with what goes on around you. Where are you when you aren't recollected? And when you have been busy with other people's affairs, what have you to show for it if you have neglected yourself? If, therefore, you wish to have peace in your soul and to be united to God, set aside all else and focus the eye of your soul on your own deeds.

If you want to advance spiritually, keep yourself free from temporal anxieties. You will only lose ground if you set any value on material things. Consider nothing great, nothing acceptable to you, unless it be God Himself, or of God. Whatever comfort you derive from any creature counts as nothing.

Those who love God and their own soul for the love of God despise all else; for only the infinite and eternal God can fill our every need and desire, the solace of our soul and the true joy of our heart.

*In centuries past, next to the Bible,
this book was the most read by the faithful.*

*"You have made us for yourself, O Lord,
and our hearts will be ever restless until they rest in you."*

...St. Augustine
