Last Words of Christ
 ...(Magnificat)
"My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?"
 With all the tortures you suffered in your Passion, Jesus, your soul's interior agony undoubtedly surpassed the pain that could be visibly seen. What you allowed yourself to suffer in soul remains an enormous mystery of the crucifixion. Who can understand what it meant for your human soul to take the weight of all sin upon yourself? It is beyond our grasp. Yet your words of forsakenness, quoting from the psalm, more than hint at the awful loneliness you underwent as your human soul carried sin's experience of separation from intimacy with the Father. I cannot hear these words you spoke to Your Father without a desire never to leave you alone and abandoned. May I never forsake the remembrance of your sacrifice for me.

"I Thirst"
 Your cry of thirst near the end of your crucifixion, Jesus, surely expressed more than the physical pain of a man bleeding to death and desperate for water. I hear also in these words a testimony of your immense desire that souls embrace the gift of faith and not be lost. At Calvary you thirsted as well for a recognition of your love, the recognition that moved the saints to tears at the sight of your tortures and your death as a criminal out of love of us. Let this thirst of your love draw in turn a permanent response from my soul. May I long always for the salvation of souls, seeking generously to satiate your thirst on the cross for love and for souls.

The God who made you without your cooperation will not save you without your cooperation.
 ...St. Augustine (EWTN)
